Every mercantile business in Honolulu has been built up by women customers

EVENING BULLETIN

3:30 O'CLOCK The Bulletin has no Competitor as Hawaii's Home Paper EDITION

The value of advertising to any business continuously in the field is shown by results. It widens the entire scope of a merchant's trade, and when he casts up his balance sheets he finds that there has been increased activity in every line. The daily advertiser in the Evening Bulletin establishes his house in the public mind as a fixed institution to which one feels he or she may always go and secure the best at the most reasonable prices.

St. Louis Team May Go To Japan To Play Ball At Tokio

The proposition to make a trip to Japan and play exhibition baseball games with the teams of Sasebo and Koto universities in Tokio is creating a great deal of interest among the St. Louis College boys. The proposition has been under consideration for some time by some of the Saints, and the plans in this regard were furthered somewhat this forenoon.

Among the arrivals in the Nippon Maru yesterday was Mr. K. Inouye, a member of the Japanese Diet for the last 17 years. He was approached this morning on board the Nippon Maru before she sailed for Japan by a delegation of the Saints. As usual, Captain Pat Gleason of the Saints was there, accompanied by H. Miki of W. C. Peacock & Co. The baseball proposition was submitted to Inouye by Captain Gleason through Miki, who acted as interpreter. Inouye, who always is interested in seeing a good baseball game, promised to do all in his power to make the proposition a success.

In an interview Inouye said that while his time is pretty fully occupied, he was willing to see the boys come to Japan and play ball with the university teams. In conclusion he promised to write a letter to Captain Gleason after his arrival in Japan.

TAXATION MEASURES DISCUSSED BY INOUE

Consul Saito Advises Local Japanese to Educate Their Children in Japan.

Hon. Kakugoro Inouye, a member of the Japanese parliament, who arrived in the Nippon Maru yesterday from a successful business trip to England, was entertained and banqueted last night at the Shin Rio tel club, corner of Vineyard and River streets. The banquet was given by the local Japanese of the Hiroshima prefecture in honor of their statesman, and was honored by the presence of Consul Saito. Dr. Haida officiated as toastmaster.

Inouye did not go to England on a government mission, but to enter into a contract with the famous firms of Armstrong & Co. the great ordnance and shipbuilding concern and Vickers, the manufacturers of the Vickers-Maxim gun, in a great coal mining, steel-making and steamship building enterprise in Wanchai, island of Hokkaido, Japan.

Inouye is the managing director of the Hokkaido Coal Mining and Steamship Company, which formerly owned and controlled the railroad business on that island. Subsequent to the purchase of the railroad business by the Government, Inouye directed his attention to the coal mining and steamship business, which he has successfully operated for some time. The company of which he is the head is capitalized at 27,000,000 yen, or $13,000,000, with 10,000,000 yen, or $5,000,000 in bonds. This is the strongest company of its kind in Japan today.

In his mission to England Inouye succeeded in interesting the heads of the Armstrong & Vickers companies, who share in the development of this new enterprise, with the privilege of sharing the profit proportionately. On his return to Japan Mr. Inouye will begin the operation of his business in earnest. He will be given, it is reported, the monopoly of constructing war ships, guns, and the kinds of ammunition which come within his reach. The materials, if not obtained in Japan, will be imported from England by the firm of Armstrong & Vickers.

"My intention is to build our own ships and manufacture our guns," said Inouye yesterday. "In the past, we have depended largely on foreigners for the construction of our war ships, etc., but today we intend to build them at home."

The prominent Hiroshima men in Honolulu who knew of the coming of Inouye met him at the wharf when the Nippon docketed yesterday afternoon and immediately took him in an

Admiral To Meet Merchants

Admiral Very is having invitations issued to the leading business men of the city to attend a meeting which will take place at his office at the Naval Station tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The purpose thereof is to secure an expression of opinion on the part of the local merchants in regard to the work which the War Department intends to have done at Pearl Harbor. The invitations are being sent to about forty-five persons through Secretary Mott-Smith.

"As I understand it, there has been some opposition expressed in regard to the proposed work," said a member of the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. "And it is the Admiral's intention to secure an expression of opinion from the merchants here in order that the War Department will be able to show that there are commercial, as well as strategic, reasons which warrant that the work is done."

Following is the form of letter sent out:

Dear Sir:—Will you kindly be present at Admiral Very's office, Naval Station, on Friday, August 23rd, 1907, at two o'clock P. M. to give your views as to the commercial advantages to be gained from the opening and development of Pearl Harbor, the building there of a Naval Station and other Federal works.

Very sincerely yours,

E. A. MOTT-SMITH,

Secretary of Hawaii.

Local Hui Is Held Up

The troubles of the Kumerie hui are by no means ended as yet. On the contrary, there seems to be more pillage brewing from a new and unexpected quarter. From advices received by the Maru it appears that the famous $25,000 show money fund has been tied up on account of the action of the hotelkeepers at Vancouver who are trying to bleed their fellow hotelkeepers of Honolulu for all they are worth.

"I have now for the first time received a full statement of the affairs of the Kumerie at Vancouver," said S. F. Chillingworth today. "When the Kumerie passengers landed some of

BLOODY TRAGEDY AT LEPER SETTLEMENT

Kahoomana Murders Mia, Attempts Wife's Life And Suicides

CRUSHES FRIEND'S SKULL WITH BLOW OF HAMMER

Woman Was Badly Beaten Up But Will Live—Murderer Ends His Own Existence With a Knife.

A murder, attempted double murder, and suicide took place at the Leper settlement early on the morning of 'at Tuesday, August 20, when Kahoomana killed J. K. Mia by crushing his skull with a hammer, attempted to kill his own wife and ended the tragedy by stabbing himself fatally with a knife.

It was the old story of a woman and the green-eyed monster. Mia was an advanced leper, the disease having reached such a stage in his case as to require the amputation of one foot some months ago. Being thus rendered practically helpless, he boarded with Kahoomana in order to have the assistance of that man and his wife. Kahoomana appears to have been of a jealous disposition, a fact of which Mia was warned but to which he apparently paid no heed. What caused there was, if any, for the trouble, no one knows, but a row began over the woman which ended in a bloody tragedy. Grasping a hammer, Kahoomana swung it viciously, crushing in the skull of his friend. Kahoomana's jealous frenzy was not yet satisfied, and he attacked his wife with intent to kill her. He succeeded in beating her up and she was very badly but not fatally and was sent out of camp.

The blood-crazed man then got a knife and used it on himself with suicidal intent. He did not kill himself outright and physicians were called, who attempted to save his life. Their efforts were useless, however. He had done too thorough a job and died in spite of all they could do.

Kahoomana, the murderer and suicide, had a bad record. He had often before been arrested on charges of swine making, drunkenness, wife beating, etc.

Stanford Jewels Sold For $350,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The famous Stanford diamonds, which were appraised at half a million, have been sold for $350,000.

A San Francisco paper of recent date says: The jewels of Mrs. Jane L. Stanford, left her for the benefit of Stanford University, are being sold in New York by a committee of the trustees of the university consisting of Timothy Hopkins, Charles D. Lathrop, Joseph D. Grant and Whitelaw Reid, United States Ambassador to Great Britain.

The jewels, which approximate in value half a million dollars, have been kept mostly in New York, and are being sold to the jewelry dealers there. Tiffany is accredited with having purchased the greater portion of $350,000 worth reported sold. Some of the most splendid of these jewels, which had international fame before being secured by Mrs. Stanford, will gain in the courts of Europe on the necks and hands of princesses and duchesses.

The money secured by the sale of the jewels will not be used for general university needs, but will be applied directly to library purposes. Mrs. Stanford established what is known as the "Jewel fund" as an endowment for the library, bequeathing her jewels to the university and providing that the proceeds of their sale should be invested and the income spent from year to year in the purchase of books.
